Three City Parks Now Ready for Summer Use

Tour of Tracts Finds Everything in Readiness As Commission Completes Renovation.

By HARRY HOLCK

More than 110 acres of grass and trees dotted with swings, tennis courts, picnic tables and benches in shady cleared areas await the pleasure of Marion residents.

For the first time in years an area of about 110 acres has been moved and hand raked, and in one park alone it is estimated that 100 tons of debris have been hauled away.

On April 20 the city park commission composed of W. P. Cass, president; W. J. Harrison, vice president; and Carter M. Patton, secretary, began the tremendous task of putting the parks in condition for summer use.

A trip through the parks in evidence of the thrifty use to which the commission is using city council appropriation of $1200-$400 for labor and $500 for material—and approximately $3000 raised in a theater benefit this spring.

With two power hand mowers and a large tractor-driven mower four and five men and about 15 boys working under the National Youth Administration program the commission is accomplishing its task.

The city boys are permitted to work only 3 hours in 15 days and have had a hard time getting the parks ready. The estimated 50 acres of debris around which for years have been untouched, permitting a tangled mass of leaves, twigs, and high weeds and discarded papers to mar the appearance of broad areas.

Now it is not only the beautiful old trees which make Marion parks the delightful recreation spots they are, but a clear view from boundary line to boundary line in any direction the view unobstructed by weeds and underbrush.

Alpine Garden (cleaned) At McKinley park the lovely Alpine garden designed and executed in 1930 by Charles A. Raymond of the Prospect road has been weeded and cleaned and the water fountain playing over the rocky falls.

The casual visitor could not be expected to realize the hours of hard labor which have gone into the 137 park improvement program and there is still much to be done.

Keeping the parks in shape means constant daily work. All day long the three caretakers, W. H. Smith at McKinley, Edna Caldwell at Garfield and John Livingston at Lincoln, if time permitted some mowing could be done daily but hours must be spent each day in keeping the grounds free of papers carelessly thrown away in the three parks.

At McKinley park Mr. Smith has the additional job of tending the pump that supplies the drinking water to the home in the park. This is a 200-foot well housed beneath a concrete pump which supplies the water to the park. The pump is a 10-horsepower motor and is operated by a hand pump.

TWO FLORIDA MEN LYNCHED

Negroes Accused of Stabbing Policeman Found Dead Along Highway.

By The Associated Press. TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 20.—Assistant Chief of Police W. L. Prater said two young Negroes charged with the stabbing of a Tallahassee policeman were lynched by unidentified persons early today. Prater said the only information he had was that the two men, who were found dead on a highway outside the city, had been found on a highway outside the city.

The two Negroes were arrested Sunday on a charge of stabbing Policeman V. F. Kelly when he attempted to question them about breaking into a restaurant. Kelly, stabbed seven times, is in a serious condition in a hospital here.

The bodies were found after daylight close by a clump of oak trees a short distance off the Jacksonville highway about 3 1/2 miles from the state capital. The bodies still were beside the road an hour after they were found.

This was the first lynching in Florida this year and the first double lynching in several years. Eugene Ward, a city policeman, said he heard the Negroes were shot to death. He didn't know any particulars about how the two were taken from the city-county jail.

"I don't know whether one man or a hundred took them out," he said. Sheriff Frank Stoumiller was out of his office and could not be reached.

Ward said he understood the two men were taken from the jail about 3 a. m. The victims were listed at police headquarters as Richard Gaskins and Ernest Ponder, each about 18 years old.

Warrants charging them with assault to murder Policeman Kelly were issued yesterday after, the police said, they confessed stabbing the officer.

Police officials who were on duty last night were away from headquarters this morning. City police place their prisoners in the county-county jail, and have access to it at all times to lock up prisoners.

There were reports that a band of men entered police headquarters early today and forced an officer to accompany them at gunpoint to the county jail and get the two Negroes out of their cells.

The men were reported to have bound the policeman and left him in the jail building, departing without arousing the jail custodian.

A coroner's jury viewed the bodies after which they were brought to an undertaking establishment.

State Attorney Orton C. Parker Jr. said "We're going to investigate this thing as far as we can. We're trying to get the parties who are responsible for it."

Guilty Woman To Meet "Double" Who Served Term

By The Associated Press. INDIANAPOLIS, July 20.—State police arrested today a woman arrested for cashing fraudulent checks and her "double" who wrongfully served a prison term in her stead, but there was every indication that officers and newspapermen were more interested in the meeting than the principals themselves.

Sold Mrs. Vivian Dorsett, 29, arrested with her husband, Fred C. Dorsett, 33, at a farm home near Indianapolis yesterday, showed little concern in the Marion county jail here over the fact that another woman had gone to prison for a crime of which she herself is now accused.

Mrs. Louise Bots, also 29, described by state police as almost an exact "double" of Mrs. Dorsett, received word of the arrests at her home in Brazil, Ind., with astonishingly little interest. Mrs. Bots served thirteen months in the Indiana women's prison for forgery before authorities discovered her conviction resulted from mistaken identity and obtained a pardon for her.

She was arrested Oct. 10, 1934, and, despite her protestations of innocence, was convicted of forgery at Kokomo after being identified by seven fraudulent check victims.

A bride of only five months, she entered the Indiana women's prison where she remained for thirteen months of a 2-to-14 year sentence.

Then, had checks began to appear again in Kokomo and Peru and state authorities reopened their investigation.

As a test of Mrs. Bots' innocence, officers showed a photograph of Mrs. Bots to the more recent victims of the forgeries. In each case, they identified her although she was in prison at that time.

Mrs. Bots received a full pardon from Paul V. McNutt, then governor of Indiana.

JUDGE ORDERS TRIAL IN FORD RIOTING
By The Associated Press. DETROIT, July 20.—Common Pleas Judge Ralph W. Liddy today ordered eight individuals and the Ford Motor company as a corporation, held for trial in the Wayne county circuit court, on an assault warrant based on the riot at the Ford plant May 26.

The former charge was assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than the crime of murder, in connection with the beating of United Automobile Workers members attempting to distribute union literature near Ford's River Rouge plant in suburban Dearborn.

Judge Liddy acted after hearing evidence that William Martinweiser, on whose injuries the warrant was based, suffered two broken vertebrae. He said he found "probable cause" has been established against all of the defendants.

Conviction of the charge might result in a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

FLOOD AND SCHOOL AID BILLS SIGNED
By The Associated Press. COLUMBUS, O., June 20.—Gov. Daves today signed two bills designed to provide funds for flood relief and school operating expenses.

Another bill permits the subdivisions to issue bonds in anticipation of the collection of levies for operating expenses.

MARCONI, FAMED WIRELESS INVENTOR, DIES SUDDENLY

Plus learned of the inventor's condition before death came. The Pontiff was said to have arrived from bed at 2:30 in the morning and personally telephoned the Marconi home to inquire. He retired to his private chapel to pray for Marconi's soul.

In addition to his telegram of blessing, the Holy Father sent other messages of condolence to the Italian government and the academy. He also directed his under-secretary of state, personally to care an expression of his sorrow to the family.

World Was Skeptical
The world shrugged a skeptical shoulder and smiled tolerantly in 1905 when Marconi announced laconically:

"I have discovered how to telegraph without wires."

Yet within a decade ocean liners were keeping in touch with each other and with shore by means of "Marconigrams" and hundreds of lives had been saved by prompt response to the old distress signal of "CQD."

And just as the Bell telephone followed the Morse telegraph, so wireless transmission of the human voice within a few years became a reality.

As an aid to navigation of both the sea and air, as a method of keeping explorers at the ends of the earth in touch with civilization and as a way of sending angry elements to bed with angry elements have vied out material methods of communication, the Marconi invention has become one of the great boons of civilization.

Marconi, like Morse with the electric telegraph, turned laboratory discoveries of secluded scientists into practical use. The actual discovery of radio, from a purely scientific standpoint, goes back half a century before Marconi.

"Hertzian waves" were the immediate forerunners of the wireless transmission of code signals. They were named for Heinrich H. Hertz, a German physicist who, by experiments in 1887 and 1888 was the first to prove that electrical waves would radiate from any system in which electrical oscillation was produced.

Hertz thus gave life to a theory advanced by James C. Maxwell (1831-1879), a famous British physicist, who developed a revolutionary theory of electricity, magnetism and light. He proved that discharge from a condenser is oscillatory, a theory evolved in 1842 by Joseph Henry, a professor of Princeton University.

If the father of Marconi had had his way, the problem of applying these laboratory cogitations and discoveries to commercial purposes would have been left to some one else, and in Marconi the world would have had instead a probably mediocre and unimpressive scientist.

Father Wanted Musician
The father insisted that his son study music. Apparatus in the home attic which the youth had designed and made himself around the piano and he frequently threatened to pitch it all out the window, especially when the son proved anything but a success as a music student.

But like many another budding genius, young Marconi had a source of inspiration and practical help in his mother, Rosa Anselmi, who had gone to Italy against the wishes of her parents to marry Giuseppe Marconi, a banker. She granted her son's wish to study physics and enrolled him with Prof. Vincenzo Rosa. She also helped him set up a workshop at the family villa in Pontecchio.

Many friends of the family looked on with amazement at the young inventor's audacious and visionary and a wastrel of good hours. But the celebrated Prof. Bologna became interested in him and gave him much sound advice and many valuable suggestions.

There was another who had faith, a carpenter who helped in the experiments and who said: "Signorino, I recommend myself to you when you have conquered fame and fortune."

In the spring of 1895 the Marconi wireless system was born. The youthful inventor—he was only 21—had found that two rods placed upright in the earth at a determined distance from each other would radiate electric impulses in accordance with the law governing the Hertzian waves.

He had established his transmitter near the window of the barn. The receiver was several hundred feet away and out of sight.

Gun Used To Signal
Giuseppe Vornelli, the carpenter assistant, was at the receiving end armed with a rifle. If he saw a magnetic arm vibrate he was to fire the gun.

Marconi pressed the telegraph key thrice, sending three dots, the letter "S" in the Morse code. A second later he heard the shot and knew that wireless telegraphy had been started on its way to practicability.

Italy was so skeptical of the usefulness of the discovery that Signora Marconi took her son to England. There, with the aid of her relatives, he was granted the first patent for a practical system of wireless telegraphy, this being in 1896 when he was 22 years old.

Marconi's first wireless communication in England was between Penarth and Weston. Three years later he spanned the channel, establishing contact between England and France. Thereafter the British and Italian administrations and the principal shipping companies adopted his system.

In 1901 messages were sent between Cornwall and St. Catherine's Isle of Wight, a distance of 183 miles. A few months later Marconi bridged the Atlantic receiving electric transmission 2,100 miles from Poldhu, Cornwall, to St. John's, Newfoundland. That transmission, like the first one from the barn to the carpenter, consisted of the three dots of the letter "S."

Though the world had doubted at the start, it became vocal with praise when this feat was accomplished. Honors were showered upon him by scientific bodies and governments and newspaper columns on both sides of the Atlantic lauded the invention.

The chief field of wireless development. The first ocean daily newspaper was published on the steamship Campania in 1904, a novelty which later became regular equipment of all liners.

Life saving and salvage of millions of tons of cargoes because of frequent occurrence as distressed vessels summoned aid from sister craft. The first great example of this came on Jan. 23, 1909, when the steamer Republic was sunk in a collision with the Italian liner Florida off Nantucket. In a 20c hour six lives were lost and several hundred others were saved because of the wireless operator, stuck to his key, sending out "PDQ" and giving the position of the stricken vessel.

"SOS" substituted
It was soon after this event that "SOS" was substituted for the earlier call because it was easier to send its three dots, three dashes and three dots than to transmit the more complicated "PDQ" letters.

In 1912 the Titanic sank. More than a thousand survivors were landed in New York. They learned that Marconi was in the city, marched in a body to his hotel, cheered him and cried:

"We owe our lives to you."

Marconi was born in Bologna, Italy, April 25, 1874. He spent his youth in Bologna, Leghorn and Pisa, studying in the schools of those cities and also in the University of Bologna.

He married first Beatrice O'Brien, sister of Lord Inchiquin, at St. George's church, London, in 1908. They had a son and two daughters. His wife obtained a divorce in 1924, taking the advantage of the laws of Florence by which a woman was permitted to divorce a man who had been married in Italy, where divorce is not permitted.

She had been a lady-in-waiting to the queen but after her remarriage to Margherita Margherita resigned her court post. The shadow on this union was removed later when Marconi obtained an annulment of the first marriage from the Vatican.

This permitted him to re-marry and he took for his second wife in 1925 the Countess Cristina Bezzi-Sacco.

The inventor lost his right eye as a result of an automobile accident in September, 1912.

In the world war he won international honors as a diplomat and was one of the signers of the Italian peace treaties with Austria and Bulgaria. After the war he sold his home in Rome, purchased a yacht and spent his later years aboard the vessel, continuing his experiments.

He capped these in 1923 by perfecting long distance "beam wireless" by which radio signals are confined to one direction much in the manner that light is shot from a searchlight.

By it fog-bound ships may be kept off rocky shores and lonely aviators guided across trackless seas. It has also made short wave, long distance transmission more certain for both telegraph and telephone.

In March, 1930, Marconi was again in the public eye by transmission from his yacht in the port of Genoa, Italy, of an electric impulse which closed a circuit and lighted lamps in Sydney, Australia, to open an expedition to King George Island.

At the same time he and others talked from the yacht's cabin with officials of Australia.

Second "Sea" Home
The "Electra" was the inventor's second sea home. In 1902 King Victor Emmanuel assigned the warship "Carlo Alberto" to him and he spent many months aboard the vessel. In that year he sent messages to his king from English waters and later reversed the experiment, exchanging telegrams with Cornwall, England, while the vessel was in Mediterranean waters.

Then he took the "Carlo Alberto" to Canada and in December the governor general of that dominion exchanged wireless greetings with the kings of England and Italy. A few weeks later President Roosevelt sent a message to King George.

Notwithstanding all this progress little was thought then of the possibility of using wireless telegraph for commercial purposes. The cable companies said they did not believe such a system would ever compete seriously with wires strung along the ocean bed. Yet when Marconi in 1907 announced he was ready to establish commercial cableless between America and Europe, there was a sharp drop in the cable shares on the London exchange.

The shores of almost every country have had to pass on the Marconi system in connection with patent infringement suits, there being many such actions in the first 20 years after England granted the first patent in 1896.

In 1914 Marconi won a suit against the "De Forest Wireless Telegraph company of New York." In 1914 scored a similar court victory against the Standard Oil company and the De Forest Radiotelephone and Telegraph company. The De Forest interests lost a third action in 1916.

Some governments were hostile to the system also, the most pronounced enemy being Germany. Through diplomatic channels that empire in 1903 called the first radio telegraph convention in Berlin and proposed that wireless should be limited to communications between ships and from ships to shores. But English and Italian opposition quashed this.

Served Army, Navy
When Italy entered the World War Marconi was commissioned a lieutenant in the Italian army and sent on important military missions to England. In July, 1916, he was promoted to captain "for exceptional services" and in September of that year was transferred to the navy with rank of commander.

In 1917 he was a member of the commission which Italy sent to the United States and he rounded out his military-diplomatic career by sitting as a plenipotentiary in the peace conference with Austria and Bulgaria in 1919.

Honors were for several years showered upon him by governments, universities and scientific societies, topped by the Nobel prize in physics which he shared in 1929 with Prof. Braun. From the king of Italy he received the Knightship of the Crown of Italy, the order of the Grand Cross of St. Maurice and Lazarus and the Grand Cross of the Order of Victory.

In the United States honorary degrees and medals were awarded him by Yale, Columbia and the universities of Pennsylvania and Louisiana; the Franklin Institute, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

Life in Later Years
Marconi's life in the 30s was devoted largely to developing science under fascism. As president of the national council of research, to which post he was named by Mussolini in 1928, he guided that body into control of virtually all scientific investigation in Italy. When the league of Nations sanctions were applied to Italy because of the Ethiopian war of 1935-36, the council was in the first line trenches of the economic battle. In 1939 Duce also made him president of the Royal Academy of Italy.

While the dedication of so large a part of his time to governmental scientific bodies cut into his own research, the inventor managed to go ahead with his work on wireless. He concentrated principally on the waves, which he called microwaves, on communication via ultra short First he established contact between points where no obstacles of land or buildings intervened, then in 1932 built a microwave telephone set which connected Vatican City with the pope's summer palace at Castel Gandolfo, 17 miles away. Later he extended this range to more than 200 miles.

PATROL ADDITIONS DELAYED BY BLACK

Superintendent Says Budget Cut Will Necessitate Reduction in Services.

By The Associated Press. COLUMBUS, O., July 20.—Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the state highway patrol, postponed indefinitely today the addition of 60 new patrolmen authorized by the legislature, saying that a budget cut not only would prevent him from bringing the patrol up to full strength of 900 but would force curtailment of several patrol services.

Colonel Black listed the inspection of school buses, purchase of new motor vehicles, uniforms and other equipment, salary increases, mailing of daily reports to county and city law officers and physical examination of drivers which would have to be discontinued.

He said it might be necessary to abandon four patrol barracks and that it would be necessary to reduce patrol practice ammunition and telephone and telegraph tolls, postage, printing, lighting and oil and gasoline.

most spectacular crimes. It climaxed a period when gang wars as a means of eliminating competitors in the field of bootlegging, the policy game and the various rackets which flourished so mightily in prohibition days, had become fairly common.

Vivian, garrotted and dumped in the park on Feb. 25, 1931, was a playgirl. She kept many of the black books, inscribed with names of clients, and with numerous sinister notations expressing her fear of gangland vengeance.

Police ran down some 600-odd leads, trying to get her killers. They made a number of arrests, even brought two men to trial, but in the end the crime was set down as another unsolved mystery.

Police Puzzled By Death of Pair
NEW YORK, July 20.—Police, pursuing a murder theory, awaited an autopsy today on the bodies of a young couple found dead in their Queens apartment under strange circumstances.

The couple, George Chinery, 25, and his wife, Ella, 25, apparently had been dead for several days. The bodies were found late last night by patrolmen summoned by Chinery's father and George Sherbetjian, the apartment owner.

Chinery lay in a pool of blood in the bathroom. The body of his wife, clad only in underwear, was in an adjoining bedroom. Her body, said Police Captain James Smith, was covered "from head to foot" with bruises.
